Sightseeing:

Washington is a manageable city with lots to see and it's easy to go around. These are just a few attractions popular with both visitors and locals.

Tour 1: Monuments, Memorials and Museums The original plan for Washington was designed to incorporate monuments dedicated to the heroes of American history. The city has quite a few places which honor those who have led the country and those who have given their lives for it.

Certainly the best place to start is the National Mall, where the symbol of the city, the Washington Monument, stands. From the monument, you can proceed to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, Lincoln Memorial, Korean War Veterans Memorial, FDR Memorial and the Thomas Jefferson Memorial for a nice half-day walking tour.

On the eastern side of National Mall, is the Smithsonian Institution. Some of the more popular ones are the National Air and Space Museum, National Gallery of Art, National Museum of Natural History and the National Museum of American History. The Freer Gallery of Art contains a large collection of Asian art while the National Museum of African Art showcases unique African works.

Nearby, the Holocaust Memorial Museum educates the public on the tragic history of the Holocaust; it is dedicated to the millions of people who lost their lives during the massacre.

Tour 2: History and Government Begin early at the White House, home and office of the President of the United States. Tickets for the guided tour must be obtained at the Visitor Center and they are given out on a first come, first served basis. Once you have toured the Executive Mansion, take a short walk through Freedom Plaza to the Federal Bureau of Investigation where tours include a history of the agency, a look into the sophisticated crime lab and a firearms demonstration. From here, it's another short walk to the National Archives. Stop to see the original copies of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, the foundations of American freedom.

Pennsylvania Avenue connects the White House to the U.S. Capitol, symbolically linking these two branches of government. Tours of the Capitol are available or visitors may choose to wander around on their own. When the legislature is in session, balcony seats are open to the public.

On the east side of the Capitol, visit the Supreme Court and the Library of Congress. From there, walk up 1st Street to Union Station. Several restaurants and an ethnically diverse food court await hungry sightseers.

Tour 3: Georgetown and the Waterfront Start at the impressive Kennedy Center, a living memorial to the 35th president. From the terrace overlooking the Potomac river, there is a nice view of Theodore Roosevelt Island and Memorial. A fitting tribute to this early environmentalist, it is covered with nature trails and local species of trees and flowers.

Next to the Kennedy Center is the infamous Watergate Hotel. Several shops and restaurants are located on the ground level. Walk down to the river and you'll come to the Watergate Hotel. Stop for a drink or a tasty bite at Sequoia Restaurant with its beautiful views and relaxed atmosphere. From here it's a short walk up the hill to M Street in the heart of bustling Georgetown.
