In 2008, it was estimated that graduates at that time will have between 10 and 14 different jobs—by the time they are 38 years old. And the necessary skills to perform successfully in each job assignment will constantly change and evolve.

It wasn’t too long ago that there was no internet, no Google, no Wikipedia, no YouTube, and no TelePresence. The internet only began to be widely used by the general public in the mid-1990s. Prior to that time, no courses were taught about and no majors were offered in internet related subjects. Most of us have never known and cannot imagine a world without the internet and its associated technologies. The change from the "no internet world" to our "internet only world" has occurred within the last 20 or so years.
